The Cure for Anarchy.

It is natural that the wanton and brutal assassination of the President at Buffalo should lead to a discussion of ways and means for driving anarchy out of the United States, and it is important that the subject should be dealt with in a broad and comprehensive way. Czolgosz had no personal animosity; he was not seeking revenge for any wrong that the administration had done him; he was aiming a blow at the government of which Mr. McKinley was the official head. No considerable number of the American people can have any sympathy with the murderer or with those who entertain his views in regard to government. That there should be laws giving all possible protection to our officials everyone will concede; the only question open for discussion is how to apply an effective remedy. The suppression of anarchy is only a temporary relief; we should seek not merely the suppression but the permanent eradication of anarchy. Stealing can and should be suppressed by law; but stealing cannot be eradicated until people are convinced that it is wrong to steal. So, anarchy can and should be suppressed by law, but it cannot be entirely eradicated until all are convinced that anarchy is wrong. Free government, springing as directly as possible from the people and made as responsive as possible to their will, is the only permanent and complete cure for anarchy. The arbitrary governments of the old world have tried suppression but have not succeeded. They have lessened anarchy just in proportion as they have extended civil liberty and participation in the government.

Stern measure must be invoked for the suppression and punishment of every manifestation of the anarchistic spirit, but beyond this remedy there must be education. All must be taught that government is an absolute necessity and that our form of government is the best ever devised. Then our government must be made as good as intelligence and patriotism can make it.

There is in every human heart the love of justice and to this love of justice every government should appeal. Victor Hugo described the mob as the human race in misery. No government can afford to make its people miserable—not even a small part of its people. Let a man believe that he is being justly treated by his government and he will endure almost anything, but let him feel that he is being unjustly dealt with and even a slight wrong will rankle in his bosom.

In a government deriving its powers from the consent of the governed men will endure much because they hope for a remedy at the next election. Jefferson understood this and among the things urged in his first inaugural address was "a jealous care of the right of election by the people—a mild and safe corrective of abuses which are lopped by the sword of revolution, where peaceable remedies are unprovided."

A man is never dangerous so long as he has hope of relief from evil, whether fancied or real, but when despair takes the place of hope he becomes a menace to society because he feels he has nothing to lose.

While we are legislating to prevent any manifestation of the anarchistic spirit on American soil, we should avoid those things which breed anarchy. Partiality in government kindles discontent; the exaltation of money above human rights, the fattening of a few at the expense of the many, the making of artificial distinctions between citizens and the lessening of the sacredness of human life—all these in their full development encourage the anarchistic spirit. We cannot give full protection to our officials merely by passing laws for the punishment of those who assault them; neither can we give them adequate protection by closing our gates to those known to advocate anarchy. These remedies, good as far as they go, are incomplete. We can only bring absolute security to our public servants by making the government so just and beneficent that every citizen will be willing to give his life if need be to preserve it to posterity. When Pericles sought to explain the patriotism of his countrymen who fell in battle, he described Greece and then added: "It was for such a country then that these men, nobly resolving not to have it taken from them, fell fighting, and we their survivors may be well willing to suffer in its behalf."

We shall fail to do our full duty as citizens unless we bend every energy toward the reform of every governmental abuse and the enactment of such laws as are necessary to protect each citizen in the enjoyment of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness and to restrain every arm uplifted for a neighbor's injury. WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

Attention.

We respectfully call the attention of our officers to the bad order in waiting room at depot. Usually the room is full of boys raising Cain generally. A dispute arose Sunday between two of them (we did not know either) and like Uncle Remus they "lamed loose" and had a free-for-all fight. Passengers in waiting for trains had to get out and walk up and down the track. This should be broken up or the railroad will be forced to employ special police to look after this.

Wanted.

Sheaf Oats; a few wagon loads of corn and 300 bushels of wheat.
5tf JOHN T. WOODFORD.

The Center of Population.

Prof. John A. Miller and Prof. W. A. Cogshall, of Indiana University, recently went to Columbus, Ind., to establish by astronomical measurement the point designated as the center of the population of the United States, according to the last census. The point sought, it was found last night, is on a farm owned by James Marr, five miles south of Columbus, and about one-quarter mile north of the spot which had been supposed to be the center. Astronomically, the spot lies at 39 degrees 9 minutes and 36 seconds latitude, and 85 degrees longitude.

Freak Tobacco.

A dispatch from Owensboro says: "Tom Jones, of Thurston, has a crop of tobacco that has puzzled him and his neighbors. He planted a field of Burley tobacco and it is nearly half Pryor. On each stalk there is a green stripe running from the ground upon two sides of the plant. Every leaf that comes out in the green stripes is Pryor of the most pronounced type, while that on the other portion of the stalk is Burley and has all the characteristics of that variety of tobacco in the most marked manner. Where the leaves start from the stalk, partly in the white and partly in the green stripes, they are half of one kind of tobacco and half of the other. Almost the whole of a considerable field is mixed up in this way, and Mr. Jones doesn't know how to class it for market."—Mt. Olivet Tribune-Democrat.

The Chicago Chronicle says: "Senator Deboe, of Kentucky, whose principal triumph since he has been in the Senate was the removal of a woman postmaster who had five children, will now know how it is himself. With a change of administration, he is entirely left out of Kentucky politics and will have a long spell in private life during which he can meditate on the subject 'Does Teetotal Meanness in Politics Pay?'"

D'Artagnan Not a Myth.

Readers of Dumas's novels will be glad to learn that D'Artagnan was not a myth, as many scholars have claimed. A document has just come into the possession of the Carnavalet Museum at Paris, France, which dispels all doubt. It is a holograph discharge given by the Comte D'Artagnan as Captain of the King's Musketeers, and is dated 1716.

Mobbed.

Jumbo Fields and Clarence Garnett, negro boys, who killed Will C. Hart, printer, at Shelbyville, Ky., were taken from the jail at that place Wednesday morning about 1:20 o'clock and hanged to the C. & O. trestle. Their dead bodies were allowed to hang until early in the morning.

The nonunion men employed in the Empire Coal Company's mines in Christian county were fired on from ambush Monday afternoon while they were returning from work, and one of them was wounded. About one hundred shots were fired at the Barnsley mines in Hopkins county Monday night, and three Deputy Sheriffs had a narrow escape. Two men created some excitement by discharging their pistols near the camp of the State Guards.

Confederate Home Burned

The Confederate Home at Atlanta, Ga., was burned to the ground last week. The home was opened for the Confederates of the State in June last and was built at a cost of about $25,000 by popular subscription.
